

2021 Society for Affective Science Annual [virtual] Conference

APRIL 13-16 • FULL PROGRAM

Colleagues:

The 2021 SAS Annual Conference will be held in Gather.Town hosted by Virtual Chair. The Gather.Town platform provides a 2D layout in which participants can navigate by moving an avatar using arrow keys. When a group of avatars are in close proximity, a video conference is started. Tables and chairs provide private video conferencing space.

*Please note that you must be using either Chrome or Firefox browsers on a computer, and that the use of personal devices such as cell phones and tablets is not supported.

*When signing on for the first time, please allow Gather to access your microphone and camera for the best experience.

Venue opens:

The virtual venue will be open for exploration on April 9th.

Combining New Eye Tracking and Stimulus Presentation Technology with Physiology Data

Frazer Findlay, CEO, BIOPAC Systems Inc.

Emotions are core to our human experience, driving our decision-making, behavior, and mood. Physiology data collection plays an important role in affective science research as it adds objective measures of physiological responses. ECG, EDA, fEMG, Eye Tracking, and Stimulus Presentation can be used individually, combined, or integrated into existing paradigms. We will demonstrate new Eye Tracking and Stimulus Presentation technology and show how to combine this with ECG, EDA, and fEMG. We will also discuss recording data in VR or real-world situations, including how to work with remote participants. Plus, we will demonstrate how to start a project and answer your questions about including these technologies in your studies.
